SANDRA VILA DESIGN HOUSE

“Thought-provoking interior design pays the ultimate compliment to architecture, breathing life into each space through materials, lighting and decor.”

Great design is achieved when a million finely-crafted details are combined in a thoughtful, comprehensive and collaborative way. That ideal is at the heart of Sandra Vila's world-class interior designs and her award-winning firm, Sandra Vila Design House. “My entrée into design was inspired by my experiences in fashion marketing, luxury real estate and art history, as well as my passion for world travel and the arts,” the Gold List honoree says. “As an interior designer, I draw inspiration from nature and architecture that I then apply to our modern world. Classical architecture is at the root of my design sensibilities and has remained a grounding force for my work, while my love for modern, clean-lined spaces has integrated naturally into my projects over time. The end results are thought-provoking and eclectic.” Along with her wide range of knowledge and skills, Vila's client-first approach to design is integral to her success. “We believe that our clients' surroundings should resonate with them and represent their highest selves,” Vila shares. “With that in mind, we work hand in hand with each client throughout the design process with a blend of visual concepts and material samples that help transform their ideas into a beautiful and functional reality.”

ASK THE EXPERT

How does architecture inspire and inform your designs?

Architecture is so important because it provides pure form and function, but it is also a living, breathing organism that acts as an envelope for the energy that resides within.

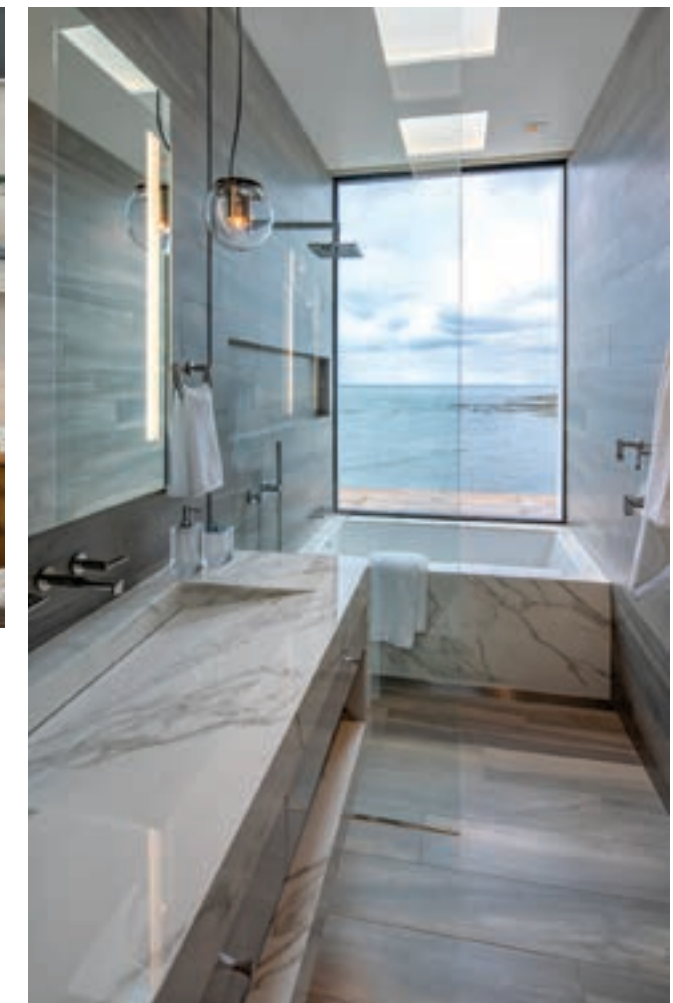

What style or characteristic best defines your work?

I don't follow trends and maintain that no two projects are alike. Recently, my projects have focused on a coastal contemporary aesthetic that is warm, inviting and lends itself to the California lifestyle.

What's been your greatest success thus far?

Being recognized for my work by my peers has been especially rewarding but at the end of the day, helping clients create delightful environments that are a true expression of themselves is our greatest success.
